IF YOU SMELL GAS

If you smell the odor of gas in your home, please remember one thing over all - the primary danger is not asphyxiation, but explosion. Natural or manufactured gas escaping from appliances such as heaters or stoves can accumulate in a dangerous concentration in confined spaces.

A flame, static electricity, or even operation of an electric switch or doorbell can set off an explosion. So, don't light a match or use a light switch.

Turn off the gas supply at the main valve near the meter. This main valve, located in the basement, garage, or utility room should be identified and marked so there is no time wasted looking for it in an emergency.

Open doors and windows to let the gas out of the house and call the local gas company for emergency investigation or repair.

HAVE YOU BEEN LOOKING AT THE COST OF CLOTHES ? Or have you been looking? You've probably seen that clothes are sky high. The Junior Chapter Future Homemakers of America decided that making clothes was cheaper than buying them. So, Mrs. Lucy S. Green, our Clothes Construction teacher, planned a sewing unit to show us how to make beautiful clothes. Then to show off our talents, we put on a fashion show for the 7th grade home economics students. The narration was done by Cheryl Walton and Jayne Doss and Ramona Gagneur. I think we passed a little sunshine across the audience.
